NUMB. 3125

TUESDAY MARCH 6, 1744.

Yesterday arriv'd Two Mails from France, and One from Holland.

Petersburgh, February 17.

THE Princess of Anhalt-Zerbst, Sister to the Prince Royal of Sweden, arrived here on the 14th of this Month, together with the Princess her Daughter, under a general Discharge of the Artillery of our Ramparts. This Morning they set out again for Moscow, as did also several of the foreign Ministers, who could not, till then, be furnished with Horses for that Journey. The grand Marshal Count de Bestuchef, and General Lubras, are preparing to set out together for Berlin; from whence the latter is to proceed to Stockholm; and both of them are said to be charged with Commissions of great Importance.

Dantzick, February 22. The News is confirmed as to the Removal of One of the State Prisoners from the Citadel of Riga, but in a manner very different from what was reported. It was not the Princess, but the Prince of Brunswick, that was removed, and that not to Petersburgh, but to a Fort near Revel: As for the Princess, she is carried into some Province in the Heart of the Empire, and placed there in some Convent; but what Course is taken with the Children we know not. The Rebellion in Lithuania encreases every Day, notwithstanding the regular Troops have done their Duty extremely well, and have repulsed them in two considerable Actions. The King of Poland is expected about Easter, and it is hoped his Presence will restore the Tranquility of the Kingdom.

Madrid, February 18. We are told, that the Count de Montijo has been but very indifferently received at Court; and there are some carry Things so far, as to say that he is actually disgraced; which, if it should prove true, would surprize us extremely. The Prince of Asturias grows daily worse and worse, without any of the Physicians being able to guess at the true Cause of his Disease. This, however, is certain, that a deep Melancholy, and Want of Rest, adds very much to the Danger of his Distemper; and we begin to be actually apprehensive, that, under his present Load of Infirmities, he cannot survive long.

Turin, February 15. The Spaniards have certainly abandoned Savoy, and are marching towards us, in Conjunction with the French. It has been resolved, in order to defeat their Projects, to form a Camp on the Var of 20,000 Men. As we make no doubt that their first Enterprize will be the Seige of Villa Franca, we have given Orders for a Body of 6000 Men to take Possession of the Height of Sorpella, by which means we hope to prevent the Enemy from slipping between our Fortifications.

Munich, February 27. Her Majesty, the Queen of Hungary, has caused a very strict Enquiry to be made into the Conduct of such as have been accused of Plundering the Electorate of Bavaria; and, among the rest, Col. Mentzel, who has been for some Time a Prisoner, has undergone several Examinations, and has been detected in some foul Practices; or, at least, in Things that, at first Sight, have such an Appearance, tho' he promises to clear up every Thing; which, it is believed, he must do, before he regains his Liberty. The Truth seems to be, that there have been two Sets of Plunderers concerned; some in the Queen of Hungary's Service, who meant nothing more than to enrich themselves; others, who, under Colour of raising the Taxes which they imposed, overcharged the Inhabitants upwards of 40,000 Florins; not with any View to their private Advantage, but with Intent to have applied them for the Service of his Imperial Majesty. It is believed that both will be severely punished, the first as Cheats, and the latter as disaffected to the present Government. It is now believed, that the Queen of Hungary will be obliged to act the best Part of next Campaign on the Defensive; the rather because, notwithstanding all the Pains taken by his Prussian Majesty to assure the Queen of his Pacific Intentions, her Majesty is very little disposed to trust him, and has therefore resolved to form two Camps of Observation; one in Bohemia, and the other in Moravia, for the Security of her Dominions.

Hague, March 2. The Day before Yesterday the Abbe de la Ville, Minister here from the Court of France, received the following Account by a Courier, which he immediately communicated to the States General.

Toulon, February 24. One in the Afternoon. Two Tartanes, belonging to the Fleet of M. de Court, and who were separated from him by the English getting between him and them, are come back to the Isles of Hieres. They report, that on the 22d in the Afternoon, M. de Court being to the Leeward with all his Fleet, Admiral Mathews, who had the Advantage of the Wind, fell with three of the largest Ships in his Squadron on the Royal Philip, Admiral of the Spanish Squadron, which was assisted only by the Constant, another Vessel of the same Squadron; that the Fire of the Royal Philip was prodigious, especially from her Middle and Lower Tier; that being perfectly well seconded by the Constant, two of the three English Ships were dismasted, one losing all, and the other her Main and Mizen Masts; that immediately a Fireship approached, in order to burn the Royal Philip, but being set on fire too soon, she blew up at the Distance of about a Musket-shot; that, in the mean Time, M. de Court did all he could to come up to her Assistance, which at last he did, with his own and another Ship, and engaged two English Men of War till Six in the Evening; but the rest of the Squadron could not come up, except some Spanish Ships, which were attacked at the same Time by the English. The Vessel that had lost all her Masts, was seen 24 Hours after, at about four Leagues Distance, protected by two English Frigates, which not being able to tow her off, set her on fire Yesterday. The three Squadrons have not been seen since this Morning. The Leopard being refitted, and equipp'd, sailed To-day. An Officer of the Regiment of Stainville is just arrived from the Islands of Hieres, with Advice, that an English Man of War, that had lost her Masts, was come in there.

There are several private Letters here, which say positively, that the French and Spanish Fleet have been totally beat by Admiral Matthews, without mentioning any other Circumstances; except that some Spanish Ships in a miserable Condition, had taken Shelter in the Port of Barcelona. We expect, with Impatience, a Courier from Italy, with the Particulars of this Engagement. And, till his Arrival, it is impossible to know what to think of the contradictory Reports, that come from various Quarters.

Extract from the Paris Alamain. Paris, March 6.

Extract of a Letter from Marseilles, dated February 26.

'There arrived, the Day before Yesterday, at Toulon, 'two Tartanes from M. de Court, which brought the 'following News. The English Fleet having, on the '22d, observed the French and Spanish Squadrons at 'Sea, began to fire upon the latter, which formed the 'Right Wing of the Line, and Admiral Navarro fired 'very briskly in Return; the Engagement lasted about 'Four Hours, M. de Court not being able to come to 'his Assistance till it was very late. This first Dispute 'lasted till the Fall of Night, but about Eleven o'Clock 'the Action was renew'd with greater Warmth than be'fore, and continued vigorously on both Sides till Day'light, and then ended the second Time. On the 23d 'in the Morning, the combined Fleet attacked again, 'and the Cannonading continued with great Warmth all 'Day long. We have sunk Two English Ships, dis'masted Three more; and, in the Evening, the Enemy 'wanting Powder, thought fit to retire. Our Loss does 'not apppear to be great, either in Officers or Private 'Men.

'We are informed, that our Squadrons from Roch'fort and Brest are in the Channel.

'They write from Brest, that on the 26th of last 'Month the Just, the Ruby, and the Medea, which were 'left in that Port, sailed from thence the Evening be'fore for Dunkirk, with all the Vessels from St. Malo's; 'and the Guards for defending the Coasts received Or'ders to hold themselves ready to march on the first 'Notice, in order to resist the English, if they should 'attempt a Descent, our Fortifications and Batteries be'ing all in extraordinary good Order.

'The Prince of Conti, whose Departure was only put 'off till we had News from Toulon, set out the Night 'between the 3d and 4th for Lyons, where the Infant 'Don Philip arrived the 16th, with the Marquis de la 'Minas; and the Officers who are to serve in Italy, have 'since received Orders to set out immediately.'

Actions 2062.

Paris, March 11. 'The King has ordered, that all 'the General and Subaltern Officers, that are are set out, 'or are setting out, without Equipages, shall receive a 'Month's Pay in Advance, to balance that Inconveni'ency.

'His Majesty has added an Ensign to each of the 'Twelve Companies of Swiss.

'The Review of the French and Swiss Guards is put 'off to the 18th, and the first Battalion will begin their 'March on the 20th. The Cavalry of the Household 'will be reviewed on the First of April.

'The Royal Regiment of Dragoons of M. de Crie 'the Younger, consisting of 15 Troops, is almost com'plear, and the Royal Polish Regiment is actually so, 'and in a Condition to march.

'Count Lowendahl is on his Return from Hamburgh, 'where he has formed his Regiment, which will quick'ly be sent hither.

'We expect here shortly a Minister from Hesse-Cassel, 'charged with a Commission of very great Importance.

'We are assured, that, for the future, a Turkish Mi'nister will reside constantly here, in the same manner 'as the French Ambassador does at Constantinople.

'The King has given Liberty, and a Pension of 1000 'Livres, to the Seaman who saved the Vigilant, which 'was still in the Dock when the Fire happened at Brest, 'and who run the utmost Hazard of his Life upon that 'Occasion.

'The Marquis du Chatelet, Marshal de Camp, is set out 'for Chamberry, in order to quicken the March of the 'Spanish Cavalry.

'They write from Lyons, that the Infant Don Philip 'set out from thence on the 21st for Antibes, where 'they are Embarking both the Spanish and French Troops, 'and a Train of Artillery is ordered to Aix.

'There pass daily through Languedoc, great Num'bers of Spanish Recruits; some make them 30,000 'Men.

'It is said, that nobody knows what is become of 'the English Admiral; some believe that he was blown 'up, others that he is killed; but we can have no Cer'tainty as to that, or the other Circumstances of the 'Engagement, till the Return of the French and Spa'nish Squadrons.

'They talk of a Marriage between the Count de Ro'han-Chabor, with Mademoiselle Stafford, Sister to the 'Right Hon. the Earl of Stafford, an English Noble'man.'
